Published by OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, this book is an extremely lucid account of the final match to determine Bobby Fischer's challenger for the title of World Chess Champion.

In addition to the 24 games of the match, a further 9 games from previous encounters, etc., have been included, plus chapters on each player's career and style. One reads for instance, that Karpov had never before competed in a Candidates Tournament and, prior to this match, had only lost 14 games in 4 years of senior chess. Korchnoi, on the other hand, had amassed during his career, more first prizes in important chess tournaments than any other contemporary grandmaster.

Written by two leading British Masters, the games are in algebraic notation with an excellent informative game explaining this system at the beginning of the book.

Diagrams - over 70 of them - are all numbered and lettered as a further aid to readers unfamiliar with the system, but users of the descriptive notation should have little trouble in following moves in both games and annotations.

All in all this is a well produced book which could be the ideal gift for Christmas or the New Year and is, in my view, better value than many books written about the Fischer - Spassky match.

CUTTY SARK GRAND PRIX.

The LONDON OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP commences Friday 20th. December, and will be the final event for players competing for the Cutty Sark Grand Prix £1,000. This prize money will go to the player who has amassed the most points in tournament play during the past year and is pretty certain to go to either A.J. Miles (Birmingham) or G.H. Bennett (Bournemouth). Both players are level at the moment with 200 points.

The London Open is only one section of the EVENING STANDARD Chess Congress which is being held in Islington, and which, according to one newspaper, is the biggest adult chess congress in the world.

From Frank Rowley comes the pertinent query: What is the Staffs record for the total age of any two players over the board.

He tells me that in a recent Stoke on Trent, Dev II match, the total years on one board was 165 - an average of 82½ yrs per player - and goes on to ask if there are any other two players who can challenge this score.

What about the record for the two youngest competitors over the board?

NATIONAL CLUBS CHAMPIONSHIP.

In the 2nd. Round of the N.C.C., Electra defeated Kynoch 4 - 2 at Sutton Coldfield on 24th. November. Kynoch (a team from the Birmingham League) are, like Electra, former Midland Clubs Champions.
